I went to Baltimore, where I made a speech to the Baltimore Association of Commerce. I talked on "United States Foreign Policy". There were 400 or 500 people there and it was a pleasant occasion.

Afterwards I took my xray plates and went with E. to the Johns Hopkins Hospital to see Dr. Ferguson. He gave my back a thorough examination and, as far as I can ascertain, thought [redacted] if I would refrain from lifting any heavy objects I might live for some years yet! We got back to Washington late.
